A Nest of Young Thieves Unearthed by Marshal Gocke.

From time to time the REGISTER has made known the fact the Benwood was infested with thieves. It has now been made public who the thieves are. Monday Marshal Louis Gocke, of the Benwood police force, searched two tunnels on the hillside, in a portion of the town known as "Kentucky Heights," and in these caves were stored silverware, towels, clothing, etc., which the gang had stolen. The tunnel were occupied by about a dozen of the boys of Benwood, averaging in age about thirteen years. In one of them was a cooking stove, and all the outfit of a "dime novel" gang. In a conspicuous place in the cave was hung a ortrait of Wheeling Republican poliicians. The marshal took the plunder, which made nearly a wagon load, to the City building, and called for the persons who had been robbed recently to call and identify their property. Many called and identified their goods. Some time ago two boys of Bynwood, came to this city and attempted to sell a bundle of keys. They were suspected, and were arrested, and taken to Benwood, but as there was no direct evidence against them, they were dismissed. This incident gave the clue to the searching of the tunnel Monday, and arrest of Lawrence Pearl and Charles Kouch, boys aged not over thirteen, who proved to be the leaders of the thieves. They were taken to the Benwood lockup where they are yet confined. It is probable that they will be released as those stolen from do not seem anxious to prosecute the boys

It is probable that more of the gang will be located, and there is talk of sending the boys to the Reform sahool. The entrance to the tunnel was so small that it was necessary for the marshal to get down on his hands and knees to enter, but when once in good sized rooms were found.

morning, there was a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the lower Benwood mill, between President Russell Hubbard and the puddlers, with a view of arranging matters to put the mill in operation. Judging from the result of the conference, the puddling department of the mill is to remain idle indefinitely. A more anxious lot of men to go to work than they were could not well be imagined. The conference was called for 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and early in the morning the idle men began to gather at the works. When the president arrived, there were fully 200 persons there. A delegation from the workmen was sent to the mill office to meet Mr. Hubbard. He offered them $4 a ton for puddling. The committee inquired if the work would be permanent. As steady work could not be assured, the men decided to stand for the Amalgamated price, which is $4.75 a ton for puddling. The conference then ended. Out of tho sixty puddlers present, but four were in favor of going to work for $4 a ton. Finally Mr. Hubbard stated that if within the next thirty days the men wished to confer with him, they would be given a hearing. The mill has not run since last Christmas, and the present outlook for an early resumption is gloomy. The mill employs 250 persons when on in full.
